DETAILED ACTION

Claim Objections

Claims 1-9 are objected to because of the following informalities: The claim language in the claims should match the specification (i.e. first support and second support) is not in the specification. Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) The invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Weber (5,330,249). Weber discloses a bicycle seat (80) comprising a first rigid posterior base section defining a relatively wide first support surface for use by the rider; and a nose (figure 10) section extending forwardly and centrally of the posterior base section and defining a relatively narrow width, elongated second support surface for use of the rider, the nose section second support (90) surface being supported on said nose section in a manner which enables said support surface to relocate its position in response and proportionate to the amount of load placed thereon by the rider. In regards to claims 2-3, wherein the first support surface is substantially flat and the angle between the central axis of the nose section and the vertical plane containing the leading front edge of the first support surface is within a range of 90-125°, see columns 5-8. In regards to claim 4, wherein the first support surface is slightly concave, see figures 7-9 and 12. In regards to claim 5, wherein the nose section includes a second rigid base section forming an extension of said first rigid base section and being adapted to support the second support surface in the manner. In regards to claim 6, further comprising a deformable means (22) operatively associated with the nose section for supporting the second support surface at locations corresponding to the amount of load placed on the second support means. In regards to claim 7, the deformable means includes a portion (72) to limit the amount of the deformation. In regards to claim 8, wherein the deformable means comprise a deformable tubular structure having an internal lengthwise extending rib (28) within the structure, and which accepts the load placed on the second support surface, a stop (74a) formation in the path of the rib to limit movement of the rib, and load deformable means mounting the rib. In regards to claim 9, a first rigid posterior base section (rear part of the seat, the wide section); and a nose section (the front part of the seat) extending forwards and centrally of the posterior base section defining a relatively narrow width, elongated second support surface for use of the rider, the nose section second support surface being supported on the nose section in a manner which enables the support surface to relocate its position in response and proportionate to the amount of load placed thereon by the rider.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The following patents are cited to further show the state of the art
